Good afternoon!

Thank you for the clarification about the entry. Can Israelis with such a passport (I attach a photo) also visit Madagascar according to these rules?

Good morning,

Short-stay visas can be obtained on the spot, upon your arrival in Madagascar, at the airport, by presenting your passport and the return ticket and paying the right corresponding to the duration of your stay.

At the airport, you will be given a 60-day visa which you can extend for an additional 30 days at a police station in Madagascar

For stays of less than 15 days, the visa is free but you have to pay an application fee of 10 euros at the airport, for this, no prior formality is to be done at the Embassy.

You can also make your request to the Embassy by providing us with the documents in the list on our site whose address is at the bottom of this email.

At the Embassy you can directly obtain a 90-day visa

A copy of the residence permit in France is also required for those who do not have French nationality

Applications are submitted between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., Monday to Friday, without an appointment.

There is no visa processing online or by email, but you can have your application submitted by someone other than yourself or send it by post with a stamped envelope (chronopost preferably) for the return.

The Embassy does not manage or have any online visa application or issuance site.

People residing in Israel can apply for a visa at the Embassy of Madagascar in France
